

Loopyard makes borrowing a tool as easy as owning one.

Neighbours rent drills, ladders, and pressure washers nearby.

Most drills sit idle for nearly all their useful life.

The average drill is used for just 13 minutes in its life.

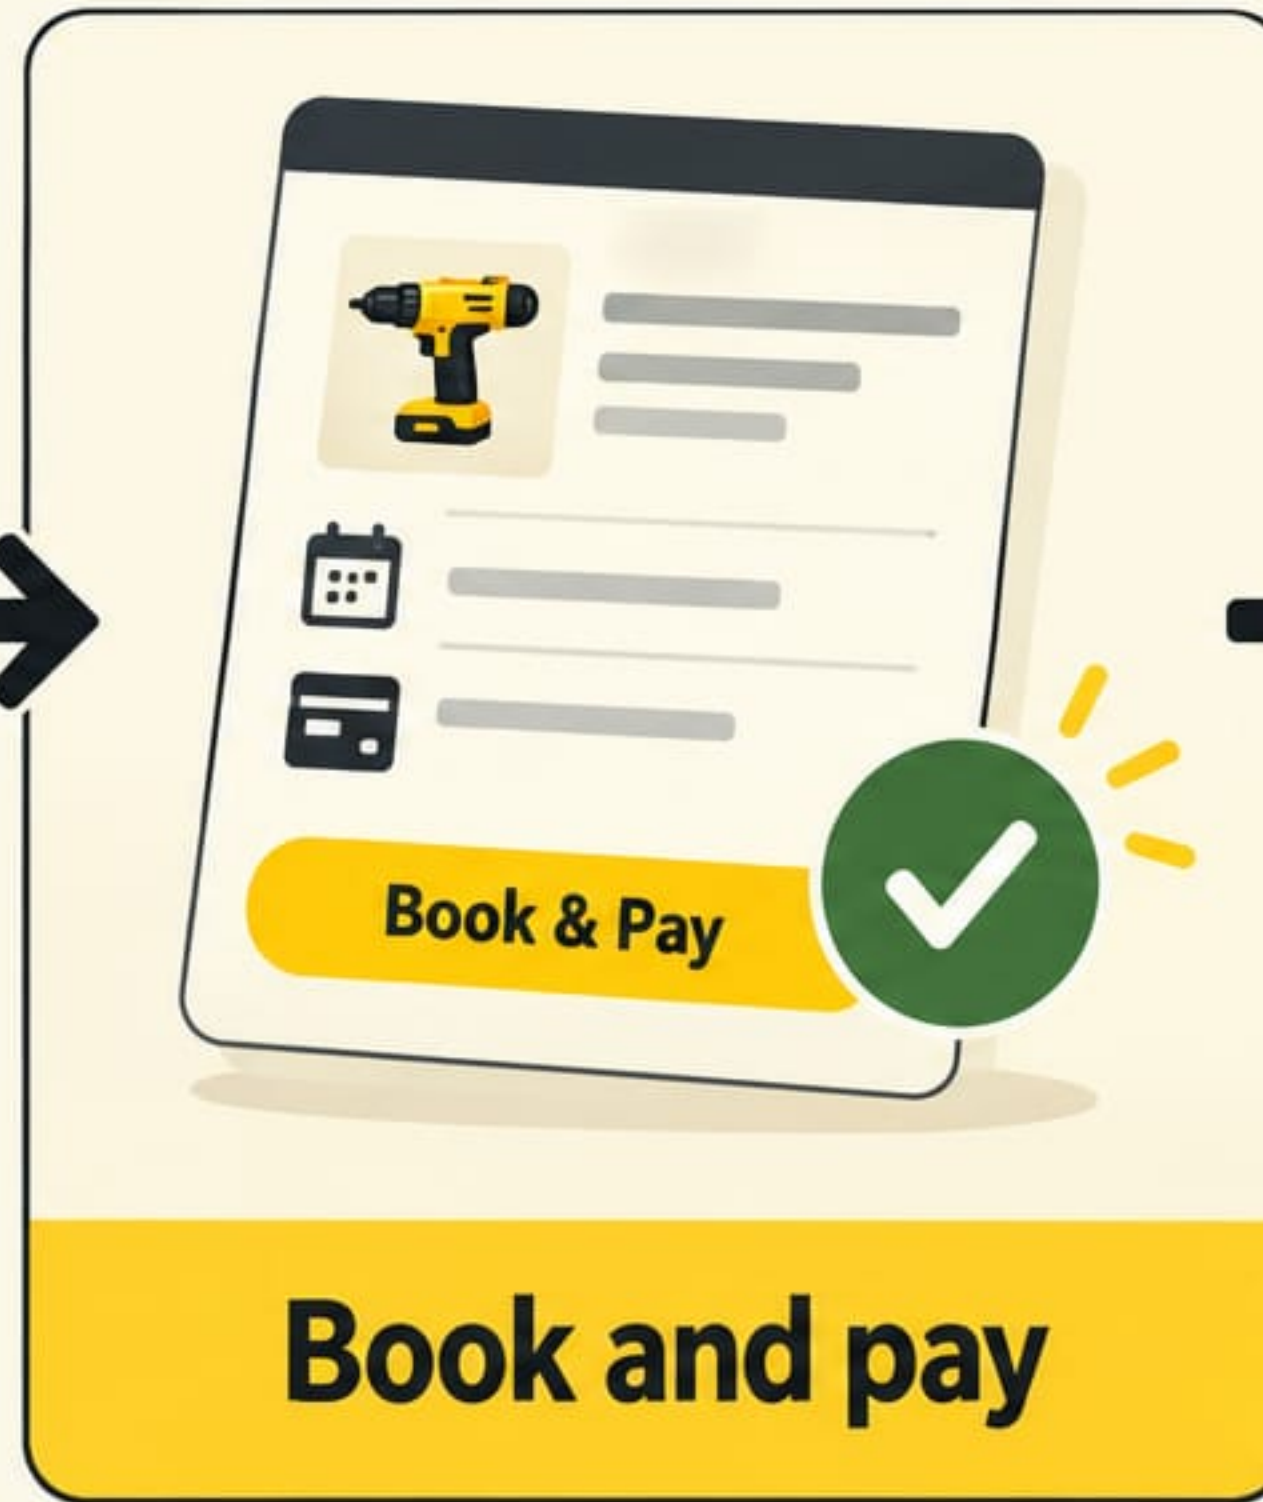

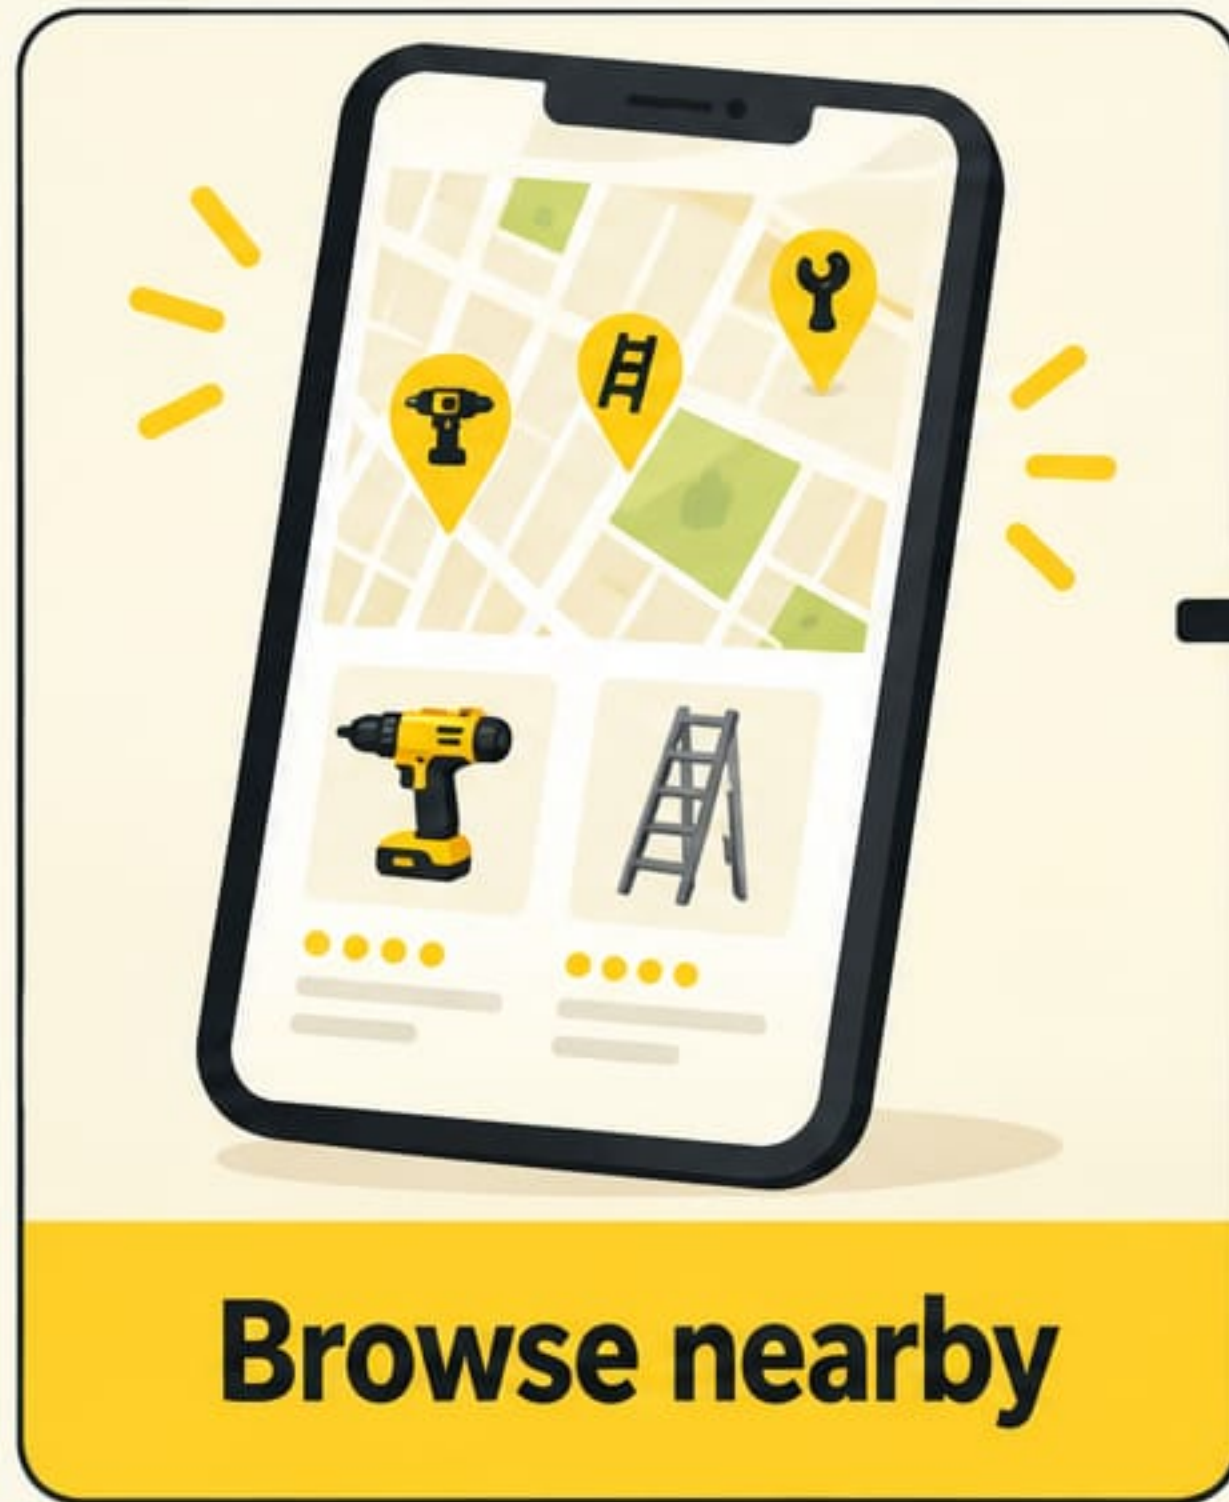

A nearby tool library turns idle gear into instant access.

Find and rent tools from neighbours instead of buying for one-off jobs.

Three steps take a renter from need to tool.

Local access fits the rare-use nature of household tools.

When a job comes up, renters can reach tools already listed nearby.

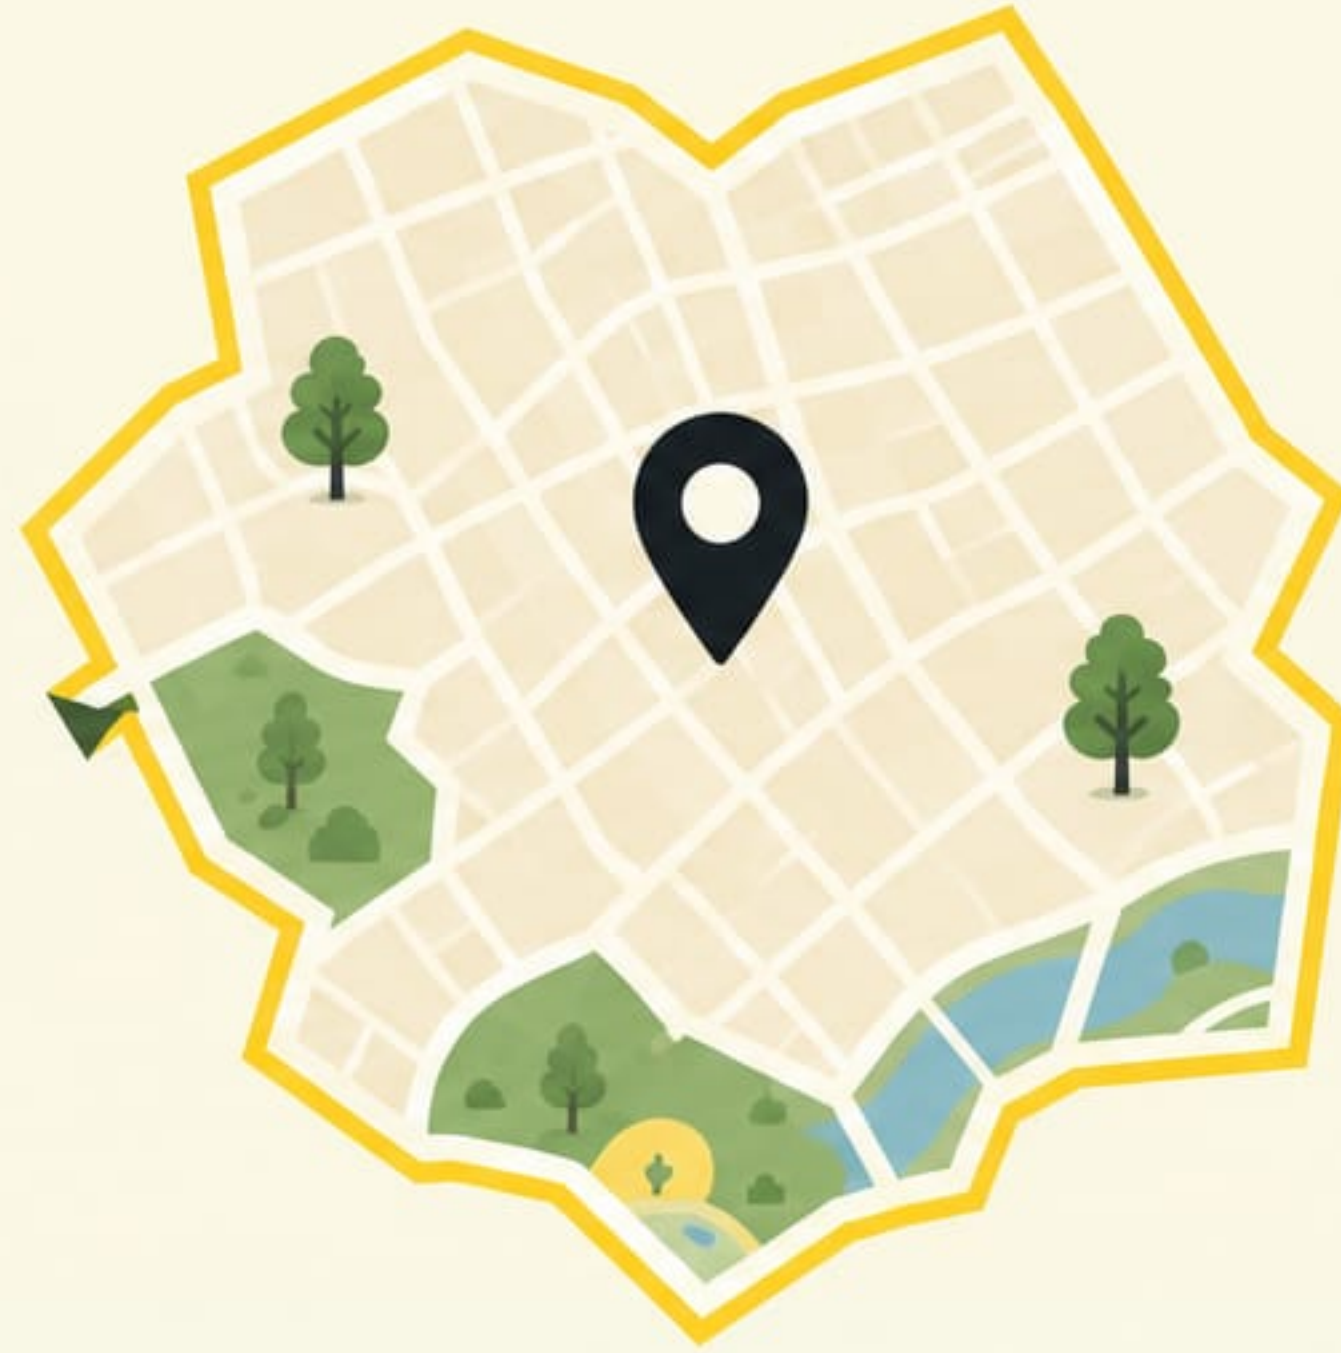

The pilot shows repeat use and neighborhood supply.
